Town Raised Its Full Quota of Troops Fifty Years Ago-New London Equally Patriotic-Windham County Has Sent Out Many Soldiers-North Startled at Rebel Advance Towards Washington-Second Battle on Bull Run Field.

In Norwich this week fifty years ago the crowning achievment was that the town had raised its quota under the call for troops and that the draft that had been talked about would not be necessary. In New London it was the same as the quoto was raised there with a good markin to prace. with a good margin to spare.
But while these satisfactory re-

But while these satisfactory results were being accomplished at home, the country was filled with five-boding over the news that was filtering in from the front. Washington was practically a beleaguered city. Through a junction effected by the armies of Gen. Lee and Stonewail Jackson, a rebel army estimated at from 100,000 to 250,000 had engaged Gen. Pope's army upon the old battle-field of Bull Run.

Union Troops Fall Back.

Union Troops Fall Back.

The confederate generals had promised their men the national capitol as a prize and the southerners fought fiercely in their attempt to advance toward Washington. The losses were heavy upon both sides, but through the fallure of expected Union reinforcements to arrive on time the loyal men of the country learned with chagrin that their army had been compelled to fall back and the exuitant rebels are threatening Washington.

The following are extracts from The Bulletin of September, 1862:

Voting Large Bounties.

Sept. 1, 1862—The company re-cruited at No. 3 Wauregan house on Saturday elected Clark Harrington captain. It numbers 84 men. A Ledyard town meeting voted $150 bounty to all men enlisting before

It is composed the flower of the southern troops this army is whipped the south this army is whipped the south will never collect such another. On the other hand, we are collecting a new army of 606,000 men, composed of the choicest of the northern youth, men who go to the field because their consider it their duty, and who will fight as long as human flesh and blood can fight. Those facts the rebel leaders are painfully aware of, and knowing them they have ventured on the desperate movement on the issue of which perate movement on the issue of which the fate of the whole country hangs. If they fall now, they fall forever:— if they succeed—well, we will want till they do succeed.

New London Ran Over Quota. The quota of New London was filled on Tuesday with 24 besides. One re-

GOT BURNS' SULKY BACK. Driver Compton Found That Stable Helper Had Taken It to Freight

Abe Compton, driver and trainer for Thomas F. Burns, did a little detective work on Thursday and recovered a trotting sulky that had been taken from his stable at the fair grounds and placed in a freight car in the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad yard.

The sulky, which belonged to Mr. Burns, was missing when Trainer Compton returned to the stable. Compton suspected a helper for one of the drivers who was shipping his horses, off on Thursday afternoon, and he hurried to the freight yard, where he hurried to the freight yard, where he found his missing sulky in a box car with one of the most valuable trotters on the track. The suspected helper was not in sight, but was reported to be off celebrating somewhere, having left the valuable property in the car to take care of itself.

Driver Compton was able to recover the Burns sulky, taking it to a Bath street stable for the night.

Burgess of Meriden, a summer resident, was stricken by heart disease on Friday morning. Burgess went out just before 8 o'clock to take in his lobster pots. He had been gone but a short time when his son, Norman, in looking out over the water from the Burgess cottage, which is located on a point of rocks opposite Brainerd Island, saw the boat drifting about.

Surmising that something was wrong he called to a passing New London lobsterman to go to the boat and ascertain the trouble. The man did as directed and found the dead body of Burgess hanging over the gunwale of the boat. He towed the boat with the body ashore and Dr. F. W. Dart, medical examiner, was called and viewed the body. He pronounced death to be due to a disease of the heart. Mrs. Burgess was immediately notified of her husband's death and left from Meriden to take charge of the body.
